When the Meal Is Done

Prepare to send your Thanksgiving guests home with delicious leftovers by having an array of variously sized storage containers ready. These containers will help accommodate different portion sizes and food items. Assemble a selection of airtight containers, resealable bags, and foil wraps for versatile packing. Ensure you label containers clearly to identify contents and dates. Organize leftovers neatly, separating dishes, like turkey, stuffing, and gravy, and provide smaller containers for sauces and cranberry sauce. Be thoughtful about portion sizes to minimize waste. Properly seal and store everything for your guests to enjoy later.

Flushed With Holiday Stress? Be Prepared

Holidays can lead to increased bathroom traffic and, occasionally, plumbing issues like clogs. To prevent this, remind guests not to flush anything besides toilet paper and provide clearly marked trash bins for the disposal of items like facial tissues. Keep a plunger on hand for quick fixes and consider scheduling a plumbing check-up during the holiday rush to address any potential issues. These precautions will help maintain smooth bathroom operations and prevent unwelcome disruptions during your celebrations.
