Large contact area

The large contact area - with particularly high friction to the soft zones - results in high torque transfer without any bruising from the edges.

Reduced contact pressure

Wera Lasertip reduces the contact pressure required and enhances force transfer - meaning less screwdriving effort is required. Screwdriving becomes safer and easier.

Lasertip

A precisely-focused laser creates a sharp-edged surface structure. Wera Lasertip "bites" itself into the screw head and prevents any slips out of the recess. It is available for screwdrivers for slotted, Phillips and Pozidriv screws.

Lasertip prevents slipping out

It happens time and time again that the tip slips out of the screw head when screwdriving, sometimes damaging valuable surfaces or even causing injury. The tips of the Wera Lasertip screwdrivers are microscopically roughened by means of a laser. This rough surface literally "bites" itself firmly into the screw head. Slipping out becomes a thing of the past.

Kraftform

The basic idea for the prototype of the Kraftform handle - that the hand should dictate the design - has, right through to today, proved to be correct. In cooperation with the internationally recognised Fraunhofer IAO Institute, Wera developed a screwdriver handle designed to match the shape of the human hand as long ago as the 1960s. After a long development phase, the Wera Kraftform handle was launched to the market in 1968. It has been optimised through the years with new technologies, but has kept its proven shape. After all, the human hand has not changed either.

Non-roll feature

The hexagonal non-roll feature prevents any rolling away at the workplace.

Rapid hand repositioning

The large contact area - with particularly high friction to the soft zones - results in high torque transfer without any bruising from the edges.
