APRIL 2026 EDITION

AVINI HEALTH[®]
ADVANCES IN NATURAL HEALING

"...new ways to make money in our compensation plan.
Everything is going UP!"

Let the Party Begin!

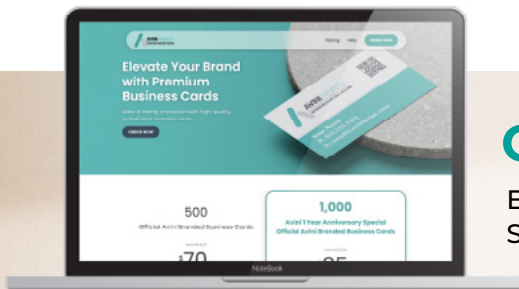

Next month in Boca Raton, we are having our Tour and Meeting Weekend! This is not just any weekend meeting — this is the beginning of the new Avini experience. There are major enhancements to our marketing and video programs, as well as new ways to make money in our compensation plan. Everything is going UP!

Please take advantage of this opportunity to kick-start your business by sending 50 or 100 videos out this month, and receiving a reward for getting it done! An email explaining how that works should be in your inbox. And for those of you attending Boca, send in your Avini stories — whether product, business, or lifestyle. Special things will happen in Boca if you do (wink wink)!

Have a great Avini April, and I will see you in Boca!

Avini's Cell Defender® Protection in a Toxic World

Rik J. Deitsch, MS Biochemistry
Chief Science Officer, Avini Health

Avini Health's Cell Defender® (CD) is the original 'liquid' zeolite (colloidal suspension) and the "category creator" for zeolite products used for health and wellness. Over 6 million bottles of my invention have been sold worldwide, generating thousands of testimonials from satisfied customers. There is no product on the market that helps remove toxins from the body as effectively, or as safely, as Cell Defender®.

When I launched my first zeolite product in 2004, my team knew that it would be a powerful clathrate for systemic detoxification. The problem, at the time, was that most people did not know that they were toxic and that their bodies carried a body burden of sequestered heavy metals, volatile organic compounds (VOCs), and other toxic substances. It was a heavy lift back then to convince people that they had a problem to begin with — before I could explain that we had a solution to that problem. Things have changed over the last 22 years; most people now accept the fact that they are exposed to toxins on a daily basis and that they have toxins in their bodies.

We know that a high body burden of toxins has been implicated in: Immunotoxicity – leading to asthma, allergies, cancers, and chronic disease; Neurotoxicity – leading to cognition impairment, memory loss, as well as sensory and motor dysfunction; and Endocrine toxicity – leading to reproductive issues, loss of libido, and metabolic impairment. In research published back in 2005, New York University School of Medicine researchers provide some of the most compelling evidence yet that long-term exposure to air pollution — even at levels within federal standards — causes heart disease. Previous studies have linked air pollution to cardiovascular disease, but until now it was poorly understood how pollution damaged the body's blood vessels. Now it seems that new information comes out every day linking environmental exposures to diseases.

A study published earlier this year raises fresh concerns that exposure to per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS – also called “forever chemicals”) during adolescence may sharply increase the risk of developing steatotic liver disease in adolescents and young adults.

In October of last year, roughly 45,000 gallons of radioactive water from a defunct plant north of New York City was discharged into the Hudson River after a federal court ruling struck down a state environmental law (Article). This exposure will greatly increase the risk of certain cancers in that region.

A study published in 2024 in the journal Lancet found that prenatal exposure to air pollution caused genetic changes in unborn babies that were associated with neurodevelopment (nine genes), immune system (seven genes), and metabolism (five genes).

Another paper published in the journal Diabetes from the American Diabetes Association established a robust association between exposure to benzene, a prevalent airborne volatile organic compound, and insulin resistance in humans across all ages, greatly increasing the risk of Type II diabetes, especially in children.

The “Parkinson’s Belt” is a series of regions in the U.S. with unusually high rates of the disease. NBC News investigated how some scientists believe that environmental factors, including pesticide exposure, may play a major role in who gets Parkinson’s.

Last year, the magazine Renal and Urology News published a compelling article on how environmental toxins contribute to chronic kidney disease. Exposures included heavy metals, molds, phytotoxins, and other environmental contaminants.

Frontiers in Toxicology published evidence that exposure to environmental toxins plays an important role in the risk of developing neurological diseases like Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.

It seems like new evidence comes to light on an almost daily basis that proves the dangers of toxic exposure. We need to realize that we have toxins in our bodies and that we are exposed to more of these toxins over and over again. We need to make better decisions and improve lifestyle choices to reduce our exposure. We also need to make the decision to actively detoxify. Using Cell Defender® every day will greatly reduce your body burden of toxins: lowering heavy metals, volatile organic compounds, microplastics, and more.

A cleaner, healthier body fixes itself.

Message from Mickey Dillon, Sr. VP of Sales & Marketing

Spring is here, and just like the new growth, blooms, and leaves popping up everywhere, we can make the same thing happen in your businesses. This time of year is usually one of the most fertile times to grow your business because people are getting out more, are happier, and are searching for new beginnings. We have the answer.

Notice I said grow your business. This is not the time to try to resurrect the old plants that didn't make it through the winter — it's the time to plant new ones and develop them over the next few months. Just like new plants, it takes daily watering: not too much, nor too little, but just enough so that each plant can find its own growth pattern and thrive with our nurturing. It is the same with Avini. We must have a daily plan for each new distributor and teach and nurture them every day to give them the best chance to succeed. However, just like with plants, we must quickly recognize those that are not responding to our help and move on to new distributors.

Our business is all about new people — people who have never heard of Avini before, who can make their own decision about which part of our business fits their needs. That could be just our products, our business, or both. We must not try to make that decision for them, but offer them a tool that gives them enough information — not all of the information at first — to make a decision. Just like nurturing a new plant.

This Spring will be the most important Spring we have had at Avini. We are expanding our facilities, enhancing our tools, and creating a more dynamic Avini that will carry momentum into the summer and fall as a company with renewed vigor and growth. Each of you can be a part of this launch by attending the May event in Boca Raton. Everything we have alluded to will be unveiled there, and you don't want to miss it. If your goals and dreams for Avini are large, this event is not an option — it is a must.

We look forward to sharing this exciting time with each of you in May, and we urge you to take advantage of the promotion: get out 50, 100, or more videos through the App by the end of April so you can be recognized in Boca. Not only will there be a reward for you, but you will have planted and nurtured aggressively in April — and will have a fast-growing new organization ready to take you to new ranks by the October Summit.

I look forward to helping each of you plant new seeds and cultivate them into dynamic new Avini distributors.

Your Partner,

Mickey Dillon

WEIGHT MANAGEMENT MADE SIMPLE!

At Avini Health®, the Avini Weight Management System was created to help people experience real, sustainable transformation. Success stories like this are not accidental — they are the result of structure, consistency, and products that truly work. Ron Carter knows that firsthand.

As an Avini associate, I started taking Cell Defender®, Nano Silver, and Plus Mind and Vision right away. I was on them for approximately a month. I want to share my testimony on these products.

For a few years, I had noticed my memory being less accurate — I would walk into a room and forget what I went in there for, or I would lose words here and there. After approximately a month on Plus Mind and Vision, I was taking a walk up the road and stopped to talk to a neighbor. During the conversation, I asked him how his son was doing, and even though he had only mentioned his name to me one other time, I asked him, "How's Carl doing?" I was surprised that I recalled his name, being that it had been a few years since I had even seen him or talked about him. For a second I stopped in my tracks and mentioned to my neighbor — in a shocked tone — that I didn't know how I had remembered Carl's name. My memory since then has improved even more, and I feel like my memory is getting more clear every day.

There are so many great products in Avini that I love all of them. When we were in Las Vegas, they introduced +TrimScience Capsules. I'm excited that I have lost over 30 pounds using the weight management system, and I also take Plus Hydration and +Fiber +Probiotic on a daily basis. These products have helped me feel better, stronger, and have more energy. I have been doing everything I can to get in the best shape, and in combination with walking, strength training, isometric exercises, and good food choices, these products have helped tremendously.
