

Original essays for sale - 5 free online courses

We have gathered 5 of the most interesting and useful online courses with open registration that will be useful to anyone who works in the educational system. Courses, unfortunately, only available in English (with English subtitles).

How to get organized: a guide for teachers

Almost everyone who works in the education system, it is necessary to adapt to the rigid schedule of classes and to perform many tasks during the day. The course will help teachers to plan their working time properly distribute the load, monitor the deadlines, time commitments, and to successfully combine work with personal life.

Teacher: Maya hake-Merlin, visiting Professor graduate school of education "Relay".

Duration: 8 hours.

Different types of relationship to the planning of their working day

Source: coursera.org

The present and the future of education

What is the original essays for sale modern education and education in General? What do we mean when we talk about the future of education and what we want to see him? The creators of the course are offered to go deeper into our understanding of the educational system to respond to these issues more carefully and objectively.

Teacher: Dr Clare Brooks, University of London.

Duration: 6 weeks, 6-8 hours / week.

Source: What future for education?

Survival techniques for teachers: key ideas and practices

A small course which will help the teacher survive the first (or fifteenth) year of teaching, to achieve sustainability and balance, rational approach to work and build the right relationship with colleagues and students.

Teacher: Orin Galliner, Director of the residency program for teachers "Match".

Duration: 4 hours.

Brain teacher during class

Source: coursera.org

Selection, implementation and use of new technologies in education

The education system around the world has already changed dramatically with the advent of new technologies, and it seems to be only the beginning. What are the criteria you need to keep in mind when choosing these technologies? How to use them, both the teacher and student had some advantages? What factors determine success and failure in the implementation of new techniques and methods of teaching? The course contains detailed answers to all these questions.

Teacher: Eric Klopfer, head of the program, "Scheller Teacher Education" the Massachusetts Institute of technology.

Duration: 7 weeks 4-5 hours a week.

Source: Implementation and Evaluation of Educational Technology | MITx on edX | Course About Video

Learning through research: teaching practices and strategies

One of the main tasks of the teacher is to attract students' attention, make them partners in the educational process. A joint study through a sequence of questions and answers, in contrast to lectures, makes learning active engagement, helps to overcome passivity and achieve better results in teaching. The course reveals the benefits of this model of learning and ways to effectively use them in practice.

Teachers: Kelly Allen, Shelly Rodriguez, the University of Texas at Austin.

Duration: 5 weeks 1 hour per week.

Start: 1 July 2016.

Source: Classroom Strategies for Inquiry-Based Learning | UTAustinX on edX | Course About Video