

Traffic Fatalities

Youths (15-25 years old) tend to have about twice the traffic fatality rates as the total population average. Both total and youth fatality rates tend to decline with increased transit ridership. Transit-oriented cities have about half the average Youth and Total traffic fatality rates as more automobile-oriented cities.